FAQ:

Should weekly fishing guests and homeowners call in to the customs office every time they return to the US from Canadian waters?

Yes, this is the main purpose for an I-68. Each time a person makes a meaningful departure from the US, he/she will need to call in and report the return. These persons should have an I-68.

What does “meaningful departure” from the US mean?

This means that the person or persons have stopped on Canadian soil, dropped an anchor in Canada waters, or met with another boat in Canadian waters.

What about people fishing in Canadian Waters-i.e fishing guides, guests?

If the fishing guides/guests do not drop an anchor, do not pull up to another boat, or do not step on Canadian land, these folks do not need to call into US Customs and report that their boat happened to be in Canadian Waters part of the time. There was no meaningful departure in this case.

What if we have a large group of guests returning to the United States—i.e. a big group of boy scouts?

If outfitters call the U.S. Border Patrol ahead of time (218) 387-1770, the Border Patrol will make every effort to send an agent to your outfitter or landing to check in the large group and save them a trip to the Coast Guard Station in town.

Do folks returning from Canada require I68 permits?

No, not if they physically report their return the Customs Officer in the Border Patrol Office at the Coast Guard station in Grand Marais during business hours.

What if they don't have I68 permits and the Grand Marais office is closed?

They must call the Pigeon River Port of Entry and report that they have returned to the US. They may be requested to remain on sight for an interview from a Border Patrol Agent, but this is not likely.

Remember, Customs is the I-68 issuing agency and the Border Patrol is the enforcement agency. Any and all questions concerning issuance of the I-68 should be directed to, Customs and Border Protection, Pigeon River Port of Entry (218) 475-2244 or (218) 475-0060.
